The Buffet Survival Protocol

Indian weddings and festivals are notoriously difficult for diabetics. The buffets are filled with refined carbs, deep-fried snacks, and heavy sweets.

But you do not have to sit in the corner eating a plain salad while everyone else celebrates. You just need a Strategy.

Phase 1: The Pre-Game (Before you leave home)

The biggest mistake you can make is arriving at a wedding hungry. When you are starving, your brain will crave high-GI carbs (like naan and sweets) immediately.

- The 30-Minute Hack: 30 minutes before you leave your house, eat a handful of almonds OR a small bowl of Greek Yogurt (Dahi). This introduces fat and protein into your stomach, which will slow down the absorption of any carbs you eat later.
- Hydration: Drink 2 large glasses of water before you enter the venue.

Phase 2: The Starters Strategy

When the waiters come around with snacks, follow the "Protein First" rule.

GREEN LIGHT (Eat freely):

- Paneer Tikka / Chicken Tikka
- Fish Amritsari / Tandoori Prawns
- Roasted Papad (NOT fried)
- Mushroom Tikka

✗ RED LIGHT (Avoid or restrict to 1 piece):

- Spring Rolls (Deep fried refined flour)
- Aloo Tikki / Samosas
- Honey Chilli Potatoes (Sugar glaze)

Phase 3: Navigating the Main Course Buffet

The order in which you put food on your plate (and in your mouth) determines your blood sugar spike.

The "Plate Mapping" Technique:

1. Fill 50% of your plate FIRST with Salad and Veggies. Green salad, cucumbers, mixed veg sabzi (without heavy gravy). Eat this first. The fiber creates a mesh in your stomach.
2. Fill 25% with Protein. Dal Makhani, Chicken Curry, Mutton Curry, or Palak Paneer. Eat this second.
3. Fill 25% with Carbs. Choose Roti over Naan (Naan is maida/refined flour). Choose a small portion of Rice over Biryani (Biryani often has hidden fats and excessive carbs). Eat this last.

Phase 4: The Dessert Dilemma

You can have dessert. But you must be smart about it.

- Rule of Half: Take whatever dessert you want, and immediately cut it in half. Leave the other half on the buffet table.
- The Better Choices: Rasgulla (squeeze out the sugar syrup first!) is better than Gulab Jamun (deep-fried). Gajar Ka Halwa (in moderation) is better than Jalebi (pure deep-fried sugar).
- The Timing: Eat the dessert immediately after your main course. Do not wait 2 hours. Eating it right after a high-fiber/high-protein meal blunts the sugar spike.

Post-Wedding Action

Do not go straight to bed. When you get home, take a 15-minute brisk walk. This simple act uses up the glucose circulating in your blood before your body has to release massive amounts of insulin.
